	I've created this board for anyone to post well wishes, news reports, questions, etc for Cory. Cory- if you are reading this on the trail.... Get off the internet and back on your skis!! Stay moving, stay warm, and remember your race rules.

	A pilot friend called in last night to say he spotted Cory at 5:30pm Sunday (3.5 hrs into race) and he was skiing strong. No one had reached the Susitna yet. He noted that there were snow drifts on the river, and that many of the bikers were walking.

	Yo Cory. As you try to skate through those snow drifts and your toes are freezing off...your fatigue will induce hallucinations... remember those drifts look like small waves on the St. Pete beach and you are a zen snow surfer! Just don't get too into it and start taking your clothes off! Bring it on!

	Cory's skiing naked out there? Interesting strategy, Cory...I can see the benefits - you'll move faster and you'll distract the competition (that is, if they can ever get close to you.) Hope you're enjoying the adventure! Adam and I are trying to get into the "zone" with you -- it's been snowing all afternoon here and there's just enough of it on the unplowed streets to ski around a bit. Good luck!!

	Go! Go! Go! Cory. Just keep counting your fingers and toes. We were all checking for updates at work today. My co-workers can't believe MY son would do such a crazy thing. BE CAREFUL and GOOD LUCK.

Cory on the Trail - Message Board

Kinda bummed that the Profanity Blocking is turned on, but hey I guess it's possible I could express myself anyway! Hey Smithdog, you crazy nut, wish I was up there skiing at least a few days with you. Please don't post those photos with drool on day 6, eh! Have to say you should have gone with Swix for the ideal Iditarod pole but you always were partial to Excel's so-called improvement! Anyway, we're thinking about you and hope you make it through with all your extremities (and I mean all...).

Thinking of you and sending good thoughts your way. You could be eating 12 gross donuts right now instead.

I feel like I should be out there with the rest of the D-Team providing "feed stations" or something. I'm sure Pepe Lopez is just what Cory needs right now.

Da-dee?

Hup, Hup, Hup, Hup, Hup, Hup.
Down. Down. Down.
All Done!

Skiing around the Bretton Woods Nordic Center's perfectly groomed and manicured packed powder trails somehow now seems very insignificant!

Just so psyched to hear you made it to Rohn, I just had to write into the ether. You're amazing. Keep it up!!

I can't wait to hear the stories upon your safe return. I bet you're going to have some good ones...

Da-dee?

BUS!!!

[Hope you have some cool hallucinations in the Burn to tell us about. Can't wait to hear all the stories. However, if you see a bus, pls take a break.]

Go Cory!

We'll be cheering you on from the sunny, sandy beaches of Puerto Rico!

Hope you've got a slick, well-functioning sled!

Cory:

Aunt Sue gets very upset when reading the "latest news", so PLEASE be careful, count all your fingers and toes (etc) and don't get on the BUS when it stops for you. All of NH is rooting for you, especially Littleton, Bethlehem and Bridgewater!!!!
